

JOHN D. WALKER PROTESTS INNOCENCE OF WRONGDOING ON ARRIVING IN ATLANTA

BATTLE TO CLEAR NAME IS PLANNED

BY EX-FINANCIER

Prisoner Blames Former Associate in Banking Business for Failure of Institutions.

TELLS OF FORTUNE MADE IN OIL FIELD

Former Treasurer of Mission Board of Georgia Conference Placed in Cell With Carnes.

Protesting his innocence of any wrongdoing in connection with the collapse of the immense chain of banks in Georgia which he formerly headed and declaring himself as glad of the opportunity to return and escape the snaffle from his family executioner, John D. Walker, fugitive from justice for more than thirteen years, was brought to Atlanta Friday night and lodged in Fulton tower for the night.

Walker drew as one of his cellmates Clinton S. Carnes, awaiting trial for a wholesale embezzlement from the funds of the Baptist Home Mission board. Walker, himself, during his heyday in Georgia financial circles, was a prominent Methodist layman and treasurer of the mission board of the North Georgia conference. He also was custodian of the funds for supernumerary ministers of the conference, as well as a former president of the state senate and the Georgia Bankers' association. Other noted prisoners in the same cellblock with Walker were Fred Fair, convicted slayer of an Atlanta policeman, and George Harsh, confessed

Walker Reaches Atlanta.

After a 67 years old and quite different from the magically financial wizard who vanished more than a dozen years ago, as arrived at the Terminal station Friday morning, Deputy Marshal Raymond C. Mulligan, together with Deputy Marshal Edward Rung, three federal officers assigned to the United States penitentiary here.

Soon after his arrival in Atlanta, which has undergone innumerable changes since Walker last viewed it, the fugitive was taken to the United States penitentiary here and turned over officially to Deputy Marshal Harley Goode, of the Atlanta office, who took him to the marshal's office early this morning. Federal officials stated, where he had been completed for his transfer to Savannah, Georgia, quarters for the southern district of Georgia, and in which city Walker will remain, and he has successfully pleaded for years.

Held at New York under $1,000 bond, Walker waived extradition and

NOTABLES PRESENT AS KIRKWOOD OPENS NEW WHITE WAY

Kirkwood's first white way system was formally opened to the public Friday night, with the Atlanta police band supplying music for the event. Several hundred residents of the area turned out to witness the mark of progress and Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, Alderman W. Guy Dobbs, of the seventh ward; R. W. Chastain, last mayor of East Lake; Councilman William E. Saunders, of the twelfth ward, in which the new system is located, and City Electrician R. O. Turner, furnished the oratory. The system is located at House and Boulevard streets and extends along Boulevard from House to Kirkwood road. There are a dozen lights in the unit. It is one of the most modern and up to date in the city, and is a mark of the phenomenal progress and growth of that section of Atlanta. Many city officials attended the ceremony, following which a street dance was held.

Severe Earthquake Shocks Are Felt Throughout Hungary

Bucharest, Rumania, November 23. (AP)—Severe earthquake shocks were felt throughout Rumania this morning, the tremors being particularly marked at Jassy, where several buildings fell and pictures and furniture thrown about. Inhabitants of the suburbs of Bucharest were panic-stricken for a time. Telegraph and telephone services were temporarily interrupted.

KNAPP TO ADDRESS NEGRO FARMERS

Tuskegee Institute, Ala., November 23.—Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of the Alabama Polytechnic institute at Auburn, will address the negro farmers and farm youth of the south at the 38th annual Tuskegee negro conference which meets jointly with the fourth annual Boys and Girls' 4-H club camp at Tuskegee institute

December 3-6. The first two days of the conference will be devoted entirely to the boys and girls; the last two, December 5-6, will be shared with the farmers and rural social workers attending the conference. Other speakers include J. B. Pierce, of the U. S.

agriculture extension service, Hampton Institute, Virginia, and Dr. Robert R. Moton, president of the conference and principal of Tuskegee institute. Land ownership for the negro farmer is the topic to which the speakers and delegates will direct their attention. Successful farmers will tell how they rose from the state of tenancy to that of the landowner; what aids they used; what methods they practiced and what benefits have come to them as landowners. Teachers, ministers, and other social service workers of the rural south will discuss home improvement at the workers' section of the conference, which together with farmers' section, comprises the Tuskegee negro conference.

MRS. OLDFIELD MAY SUCCEED HUSBAND

Batesville, Ark., November 23.—(AP) Mrs. W. A. Oldfield may succeed her husband, the veteran congressman of the second district and democratic "whip" in the house, for the short term expiring next March. While Mrs. Oldfield was on her way back to Washington today after burial of her husband yesterday friends here said she agreed before leaving to consider the suggestion that she become a candidate for the unexpired term.

10 TO 15-YEAR TERM IMPOSED ON NEGRO IN BURGLARY CASE

An alleged reckless rage on the part of Frank Fagan, negro, brought him a sentence of from 10 to 15 years Friday when he was convicted in Fulton superior court on charges of burglary. Fagan's defense for breaking into the home of Nellie Brewer, at 738 Jones avenue, was that he did the house-breaking while angry. The indictment against Fagan was a little unusual in that it charged burglary by breaking into a house with intent to steal. Fagan did not take anything, according to the testimony, but he almost broke up everything in the house, it was said. When the occupants heard him cry in the front door, they went out the rear entrance and called the police. Testimony was to the effect that Fagan did about $200 worth of damage in his "bull in a China shop" stunt. Fagan escaped through a window while police officers gave chase, it was shown. The negro was captured about a week later. Fagan posted bond Friday afternoon pending the hearing of a motion for a new trial.

SMUGGLED ALIENS HIDDEN IN MOVING VAN, U. S. CHARGES

Windsor, Ont., November 23.—(AP) Every day for more than a year a large moving van loaded with empty beer bottles crossed the ferry to this city from Detroit, after making the trip to that city apparently empty. Today Justin Barker, Windsor moving van operator, is under indictment in Detroit and subject to arrest for conspiracy to smuggle aliens should he enter the United States, and Edwin Eden, the van driver, is awaiting trial in Detroit for smuggling. Eden was arrested when United States immigration officers examined the van as he drove it off the ferry from Windsor and discovered an Austrian hidden in a compartment in the top of the driver's cab. James Adams, United States immigration agent, said two aliens a day had been smuggled into Detroit in the van. Adams estimated that 50 aliens were daily smuggled into the United States along the Windsor-Detroit border by boats, airplanes and other means.

NEVER ENGAGED, DECLARES AMELIA, DENYING REPORTS

Chicago, November 23.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly across the Atlantic, arrived today to attend the DeWitt-Booth-Northwestern football game tomorrow. She made haste to deny all published reports about her having broken a betrothal to Samuel Chapman, Boston lawyer, and to add that "an engagement would not be broken if there never was one." Miss Earhart said she had merely told reporters that she would not discuss the matter of an engagement but that when she did marry she would do so without announcement.

SUICIDES AMONG DIVORCED PERSONS HAS HIGH RATE

Chicago, November 23.—(AP)—The suicide rate among divorced persons, according to Professor Arthur J. Todd's statistics, is four times as great as among people happily married. Professor Todd, head of Northwestern university's sociological department, said that investigation undertaken by his department showed a ratio of one divorce to every seven marriages in this country. Indicating, he thought, a "serious disorder." The percentage of suicides among divorced people, he said, "is proof of mental instability and social maladjustment." He criticized "companionate marriage" as "socially unsound."

MIRROR FLASH LEADS TO BOOKMAKING COUNT

Four Arrested in House Mile From Bowie, Md., Race Track.

Bowie, Md., November 23.—(AP)—Puzzled by the flash of a mirror, Prince Georges county officers followed the gleam to a house about a mile from the Bowie race track and there found a radio outfit and telegraph set. As a result four men are under arrest today on charges of bookmaking and giving out racing information unlawfully. The policemen also located a tiny radio sending set built into a vest. They advanced the theory that this was used by someone at the track to flash winners and odds to someone at the house. In apparent contradiction to a part of this surmise, was the discovery of two high-powered telescopes, placed so that they covered the start and finish at the track. The four taken into custody gave their names as Peter Coane, John Fay, Thomas Payfle, and John Troy, all of Baltimore. They were released on bail of $750 each.

GA. TECH NIGHT SCHOOL
HOLDS DANCE TONIGHTAnnual 'Get Together' Event
To Take Place at New Dining Hall.

Georgia Tech's Evening School of Commerce will entertain tonight at its annual dinner-dance at the new Tech dining hall. This event is a "get together" affair for the students, of whom 402 are enrolled this year. This enrollment is the largest in the history of the school.

Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Brittain and the Georgia Tech faculty will be present. Dr. Brittain, president, will make a brief address. Robert S. Parker, of the law firm of Randolph, Parker and Fortson, will be the principal speaker. Mr. Parker is prominent as an after-dinner speaker and in the promotion of civic enterprises.

Sammy Mayer, sales manager of Stone Baking company and former Georgia Tech and professional baseball star, will award the Stone Baking company's scholarship to the student attaining the highest scholastic record for the past three years. The Venable Club cup will be awarded to the most popular student who was at the dinner. The annual dinner-dance was arranged by the Inter-Fraternity Society council, which is composed of members from the evening school clubs and fraternities. O. J. Parker, who will act as toastmaster, is president of the council. The other officers of the council are Fred Allen, vice president; Miss Mary Cheatham, secretary; Miss Mary Mitchell and Sarah Drennan and Albert Gibson, Guy Amason, Norman Pettys, Graham Thomas, H. B. Elliott, Henry Hills, A. D. Lawton, Oscar Bergstrom, and Stephen Coltau are the student members of the council. The faculty representation are Professors George M. Sparks, director of the evening school of commerce; E. B. Meriwether, and F. B. Wynn.

EMBRYONIC EMORY
STUDENT IS HELD FOR MOTOR THEFT

Charges from Gainesville, Fla., of automobile theft Friday brought arrest to B. B. Bernstein, 21, of Brooklyn, N. Y., in the registrar's office of Emory University, when he attempted to enroll in the school, according to announcement of school authorities.

Bernstein was arrested in the office of J. Gordon Stipe, registrar, who had summoned the DeKalb county police after having been informed previously that the youth was wanted on auto theft charges in the Florida city.

Bernstein Wednesday appeared at the office of Mr. Stipe to register, but the registrar was not at his desk. He reappeared on the campus Thursday night when he told a dormitory custodian that he was a new student and would like to be assigned to a room. This was done.

A letter to the registrar from authorities at Mercer University in Macon, contained information that the youth had registered there and given a check for $50 and that he was wanted in Gainesville, Fla., for automobile theft.

When Bernstein applied Thursday morning, Stipe detained him in the office until DeKalb police arrived.

DAVIS URGES COUNCIL
FOR LABOR DISPUTESSecretary Says Problems Can Be Solved Without Violence.

New Orleans, November 23.—(AP)—A man who hopped his way to New Orleans 38 years ago to get a delivery job driving a mule team delivered the principal speech here today at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

It was James J. Davis, secretary of labor. "Thirty-six years ago I happened to be in New Orleans with a little labor matter on my mind," he said. "I was a young fellow very much in need of a job and anxiously hunting one."

Secretary Davis explained he had been an iron puddler in Birmingham but a dispute closed the mill.

"A number of us came by way of a side-door Pullman to New Orleans, where we got jobs working on the levee. I was driving a pair of mules that dragged a dirt scraper. Never before had I driven mules, but I had to have a job and was willing to try anything. One day the handle of the scraper came up and handed me a wicked cut across one of my eyes."

"The boss saw the blood on my face and fired me for incompetence. By all the rules of the game I had at least $20 coming to me. But did I get it? I did not. I got it where."

Turning to the settlement of industrial disputes Secretary Davis said his eight years in office had taught him that force will never solve a problem. "We must arrive at our industrial conclusions in a peaceful and harmonious way," he added. "All our problems can be solved without resort to violence if we but sit about the council table and think in terms of what is best for all concerned, the people as well as ourselves."

Aside from Secretary Davis' speech the convention spent practically all of its time today passing resolutions, all of which were adopted without a dissenting vote. For a few moments the delegates stood with bowed heads in silent tribute to the members who have died during the past year.

At the conclusion of the convention the convention adjourned until Monday morning. President William Green announced that all the committees who had completed their work had reported and that the important resolutions committee would not be ready until Monday.

Assaults Cheap Labor. One of the resolutions adopted favors exclusion of Filipinos from the United States on the ground that "there are a sufficient number of Filipinos ready and willing to come to the United States to create a race problem equal to that already here."

Declaring that the "desire for cheap labor has acted like a cancer on American private and public life, destroying American ideals and preventing the development of a nation based upon racial unity, the resolution said 'nothing short of exclusion can prevent the consummation of the desire for cheap labor and its evils to come.'"

The resolution approved passage of the Welch bill introduced in the house of representatives to prevent Filipinos from being imported.

Another resolution adopted would prevent smuggling of Chinese and "excluded Europeans" into the United States.

The convention approved another resolution protesting passage by congress of any bills introduced intended to repeal "the important features of the La Follette seamen's act."

CUBA HEALTHIEST COUNTRY IN WORLD. CONSUL DECLARES

Cuba today is the healthiest country in the world, according to statistics released Friday by Luis Bas Molina, Cuban consul here. Figures reveal that the present death rate is 11.58, lower than any other country in the world.

"Since 1902, the date of the withdrawal of the American Army of Occupation in Cuba," Sr. Bas Molina said, "the death rate of Cuba has decreased from 13.88 to 11.58, which renders Cuba the healthiest country in the world. The Platt amendment provides the observance of health regulations and the above achievement proves the right of the Republic of Cuba to be free from supervision of this character."

Advance of the country in exports of vegetables and fruits have reached a new high mark during the first semester of the current year, according to the Cuban consul.

"Cuba has exported 24,531,211 kilos of vegetables, amounting to $907,034, consisting chiefly of tomatoes, potatoes, egg plant and peppers. Fruit exports totalled 75,237,799 kilos, amounting to $1,885,422. Pineapples were the chief fruit export, with 35,208,027 kilos, followed closely by bananas, with 32,933,122 kilos."

NEGRO IS CHARGED WITH COAL THEFT FOR DIVORCED WIFE

So his divorced wife might have coal for the winter months, H. Y. Duke, 38, of 88 Richardson street, did not hesitate to steal several tons owned by the city and intended for the Battle Hill sanatorium, according to city officials who arrested him and several alleged accomplices Friday night.

The city inspector of weights and measures, Richmond Paul, and his assistant, W. L. Owen, said that Duke arranged with Will Rush and John Wesley, negro employees of a local trucking company, to drive the wagon in the charge by his wife's home at 982 Fair street and drop off several tons en route from the city's coal car to the sanatorium. This was done the officers allege and as a result the three negroes were arrested and a negro, Annie Warner, who lives at the Fair street address, also was taken into custody.

COOLIDGE PLANS TRIP TO FLORIDA ABOUT FEBRUARY 1

Washington, November 23.—(AP)—President Coolidge is considering a trip to Mountain Lake, Fla., about February 1 to dedicate a bird sanctuary.

All of the president's engagements for this winter are necessarily tentative because congress will be in session, but he is hopeful that he will be able to get away for the Florida trip. The proposed trip would be President Coolidge's only departure from Washington before he leaves office on March 4.

The bird sanctuary is an undertaking that has been promoted by Edward Bok, and the president is interested in the project from the standpoint of saving bird life in this country.

Burned Home
Of Poor Widow

Oconto Falls, Wis., November 23.—(AP)—"Love thy neighbor as thyself," is more than a Biblical phrase to farmers near here.

They have literally exemplified it by rebuilding the burned farm home of Mrs. Ernestina Schindel, a widow with eight children.

Under a carpenter's direction, neighbors rallied to her aid immediately after the fire, in which Mrs. Schindel was overcome before she was rescued.

By Sunday night, they say, the Schindels may move into their new home. A sum of money, to give the family a new start, has been raised by neighbors.

It will be a genuine Thanksgiving this year for the Schindels.

POLICE HEAD, TRIED
TWICE FOR MURDER,
BACK IN POSITION

Canton, Ohio, November 23.—(AP)—Serranus A. Lengel, removed as chief of police after the killing in July, 1926, of Don B. Mellett, Canton editor, tried twice for his murder and finally acquitted after he served several months of a penitentiary sentence, was reinstated today as head of the Canton police department.

Lengel's removal was on charges of inefficiency. His first trial resulted in conviction, but he was acquitted on a second hearing ordered after he had entered the penitentiary.

After his removal as chief Lengel filed an appeal from his conviction. The decision means that Lengel, unless the decision is reversed by a higher court, will be entitled to back pay from the time of his removal in August, 1926.

OBOY GANG
HOW TO FIND PERCY...

I wonder where Percy is. I've been looking for him everywhere... Yonder comes Susie. I'll ask her if she knows.

Hello Susie. Where you goin'?

I'm going to the grocery store for mother. Come on with me!

Naw...can't go. I'm trying to find Percy. Know where he is?

No—but if you'll go home with me after we get the OBOY bread, I'll get mother to fix some sandwiches for us and I know Percy'll turn up then. He always does when sandwiches are around!

OBOY BREAD

THE BREAD THAT'S DEDICATED TO ALL CHILDREN BECAUSE IT'S SO GOOD FOR THEM

DO YOU have trouble getting the children to eat plenty of bread? Give them Oboy and see what a difference!

Kiddies love the tasty, flaky crust. And that snow-white center tastes almost as good as cake. Wonderful flavor!

And fortunate is the child who gets plenty of Oboy bread every meal. Oboy builds strong bodies, furnishes energy, because it is extra rich in nutriment and healthful food salts.

Oboy is one of the most popular breads in Atlanta, although it has been here only a few weeks. It's so different from other breads. Firmer textured. Keeps fresher longer. Tastier.

Ask your grocer for Oboy bread. Oven-fresh in the two-blue wrapper. And show the children the Oboy "comics." They teach a splendid health lesson.

MENDEZ FINISHES LEG
ON FLIGHT BACK HOMEColombia Aviator Completes
1,040 Miles in 8 Hours,
40 Minutes.

Jacksonville, Fla., November 23.—(AP)—Home bound from New York to Bogota, Colombia, Lieutenant Benjamin Mendez, of the Colombian army, completed the first leg of his voyage today, 1,040 miles, in eight hours and 40 minutes.

Dropping from the skies like a graceful bird, Mendez' seaplane, the Ricarte, named for a patriot of his native land, came to rest on the St. John's river at 4:15 o'clock this afternoon. The takeoff from Mitchell field, New York, was at 7:35 o'clock this morning.

So swiftly did the Ricarte wing its way, aided by favorable winds and perfect weather, that Mendez arrived ahead of the local reception committee and it was nearly half an hour before many of the astonished officials could get to the dock to greet him.

Appearing over the city exactly at 4 o'clock the Ricarte circled the business district, was banked across the St. John's and then flew straight to its moorings upstream near the most exclusive residential section.

Praising his plane as a jewel, the former "gas boy" at Curtis field, did not climb to the dock until every detail of the fastening had been secured. The Ricarte is the gift to Mendez of his countrymen and of the Bogota newspaper, Mundo El Dia, through popular subscription.

After the official greeting, Mendez declared he would attend a banquet in his honor here tonight and would leave for Havana, Cuba, early tomorrow. From Havana he will hasten by stages to the Colombian capital, which he left five years ago to learn the art of flying.

Mendez resigned a commission in the Colombian army to come to the United States. He did not have enough money to buy a plane, so he went to work at Curtis field and learned how to handle the controls. Later, Colombia commissioned him a lieutenant of aviation and the American government extended to him the privileges of army flying instruction.

John Tedhunter, an American, is accompanying Mendez as mechanic.

Methodist Protestant
Conference Will Hold
Last Services Sunday

The ninety-ninth annual Georgia conference of the Methodist Protestant church, which opened here on Wednesday of this week will close on Sunday with an ordination service.

At the first session after the formal opening Wednesday morning the officers for the coming year were chosen. The Rev. S. C. Campbell, of Bowline, was elected president; A. F. Hearn, of Columbus, was chosen as secretary, and H. C. Key, of Bowdon Junction, was named treasurer.

Three preachers on trial, G. A. Livey, R. C. Goldard and T. J. Hoover, having completed their second year course of study were passed to the third year at a later business session.

The ordination service which will mark the close of the conference will be conducted by the newly elected president, with the assistance of C. D. Martin and E. P. Cowan, elders. Those who are to be ordained are M. L. Edgar, J. B. Handley and Mrs. H. H. McAfee.

CHILDREN'S MEETINGS
Salvation Army Holds Two Services Sunday.

Two special children's meetings of the Salvation Army will be held Sunday at the Citadel, 54 Ellis street, it is announced. The morning service will be held at 10 o'clock while the afternoon meeting will begin at 2:15 o'clock.

MILITIA GUARD TAKEN
FROM NEGRO SLAYERSAction Follows Lack of Threats of Violence at Mobile Jail.

Mobile, Ala., November 23.—(AP)—The state militia ordered on duty by the governor last night at the Mobile county jail to protect eight prisoners arrested in connection with the killing of C. C. Coffee, 70, years old, prominent Mobilian, were withdrawn tonight. No reports or threats of trouble were received by the sheriff.

Although state law enforcement officers scout the confessed story that three negroes slew and threw the body in Hal's Lake, Clarke county, Sheriff Pat Byrne, of Mobile county, clings to his belief the negroes told the truth. The sheriff declared he could not conceive of the negroes manufacturing a story of killing Mr. Coffee and throwing his weighted body into the lake although other officers searching for the body think it was buried somewhere in the dense woods about Hal's lake.

Will Lewis, aged negro, held as a material witness in the killing of C.

C. Coffee, threw more light on the crime by making sworn statements that he witnessed the killing. Lewis admitted to Solicitor Bart B. Chamberlain, Solicitor Joe Pelham and Sheriff Pat Byrne that he was in the woods of Hal's lake getting out timber the afternoon that Carson Lewis, Percy Lang, Bill Lang, and Jerry York killed Mr. Coffee.

He said that they told him to "go ahead with his work" but he saw them strike down Mr. Coffee with clubs and heard his groans. Lewis stated that someone in the crowd of negroes said that he (Coffee) is "not dead, hit him again." Lewis continued that he heard the negroes mentioned carry the body over a hill and that later he heard them plotting to come back that night and sink it in the lake.

SCHOOL REPAIRS BEGIN
Work of Razing Dangerous
Wall Is Started.

Workmen Friday began razing the wooden and dangerous section of the cracked wall at the Henry W. Grady High school, preparatory to mending it in order to eliminate the possibility of its falling and crushing students.

The repairs are being made under orders from a special committee of the board of education empowered to take necessary steps to prevent the possibility of an accident due to a two-inch crack in the outer wall of the structure.

McMANUS TO GIVE UP IN ROTHSTEIN PROBE

Police Hope To Indict Man
They Declare Did Not Kill Gambler.

New York, November 23.—(United Press.)—New York police, denied by newspapers for their apparent complete failure to learn anything of the murder of Arnold Rothstein nearly three weeks ago, announced today they would seek indictment of a man who, they said already, was not the murderer.

The man mentioned is "Honest" George McManus, who absent-mindedly left with Rothstein's overcoat instead of his own after the shooting of the gambler in the Park Central hotel, October 3. Incidentally, the overcoat is almost the only direct clue the police have obtained in their 19 days of investigation.

It is reported that McManus, whom the police have been seeking for weeks, but who is declared to be hiding in tendorin speakies and cafes, may surrender himself for questioning Monday if his friends can arrange formalities.

Newspapers here are depicting a slow-motion police force and facetious editors are addressing "helpful hints" to wistful Warren—the police commissioner.

Tension in underworld. But Rothstein in death is supposed to have given the police information that may dynamite the gaudy criminal structure erected in the bright-light district in years and involve in the wreckage not only known or suspected criminals but persons not generally known or supposed to be associated with them.

Rothstein refused to discuss his shooting with police, but the documents he left behind him—$40,000 of them—were said by authorities to be the most important, generally, that ever came into their possession regarding the New York underworld.

There was some mystery for a time today because District Attorney Banton and others, after announcing the sensational nature of the documents, stopped talking about them. But it was explained that the prospect of indicting McManus, or of his surrender, was responsible.

Because of the documents, there is extreme tension among local racketeers, and possibly, if reports are true, among many persons not supposed to be in any "racket," but who were associated with Rothstein in one way or another.

There has been one murder mystery in recent years as baffling as that of Rothstein, or more so—that of the bridge expert, J. B. Elwell, who was found shot to death at his palatial home early one morning, sitting in a chair in evening dress after returning from a party.

The only one which can match it in potential danger to underworld is the Becker-Rosenthal case in 1912.

Herman Rosenthal, a gambler much lower in the scale than Rothstein, was shot and the lid on the notorious tendorin district was blown off. Rosenthal, unlike Rothstein, did not leave any documents. Rothstein's files, however, are said still to contain fact or comment on every angle of criminal activity among big-time New York "racketeers" or ordinary crooks.

FINAL RITES TODAY FOR JOHN CORRIGAN, PIONEER ATLANTAN

Funeral services for John Corrigan, former assistant in the office of the solicitor of the criminal court and long resident of Atlanta, will be conducted at 10 o'clock this morning from the Sacred Heart church. The Rev. Father M. A. Cotter will be in charge and burial will be in West View.

David Williams, George Matheson, Major E. J. Quinn, J. Charles Gavan, James Kelley, Eugene R. Black, John N. Malone, James Branch and Peter F. Clarke will serve as pallbearers. Members of the Pioneer Schoolboys' association, the Atlanta council, Knights of Columbus and the Red Men have been asked to attend the services in a body and act as an escort of honor.

Mr. Corrigan died Thursday morning at his home in Macon, Ga., at the age of 75. He had been ill for a number of months.

Gene Tunney And His Wife Back Dec. 19

Rome, November 23.—(AP)—A dispatch to Giornale D'Italia from Pola today said that Gene Tunney had fixed December 19 as the date for his departure to the United States. The item added that he had announced his intention of returning with Mrs. Tunney early next spring to the island of Brioni, where they have been spending their honeymoon.

Tunney recently visited the Pola Boxing club, which he presented with an autographed photograph of himself. He was quoted as being pleased with the victory which had been afforded him and his wife at the Adriatic resort.

GEORGE WILSON, DEAD OF WOUND, TO BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral services for George Wilson, Atlanta attorney, of 2225 Cottage Grove avenue, in East Lake, who was killed when he is thought to have tripped on the edge of his bathtub, Patten down a stairway and axed, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from Spring Hill chapel.

The Rev. D. P. McGeechly will officiate and interment will take place in East Lake cemetery.

James C. Davis, vice president of the Atlanta Bar association, of which Mr. Wilson was a prominent member, has named the following as an escort of honor at the funeral services:

Bond Almond, R. W. Crenshaw, H. A. Beaman, Grover Middlebrook, Scott Canfield, Clarence Calhoun, Brooks Patterson, John M. Owe, Frank Carter, A. C. Corbett, James F. Cox, Walter T. Daley, Estes Doremus, Thomas H. Scott, P. R. McCutchen, Jr., George S. Peck, William G. Grant, Edgar A. Neely, Leon C. Greer, Cecil R. Hall, J. N. Johnson, Jr., Ralph McClelland, Eugene M. Mitchell and W. R. Tichenor.

According to members of the family, Mr. Wilson heard a noise in the basement early Friday and took a pistol to investigate. Several minutes later, he heard a fall and a pistol shot. Rushing out of their rooms they found Mr. Wilson lying at the foot of the stairs with a pistol wound in his side. He said he had fallen and discharged the gun.

Besides his wife, he leaves a daughter, Jane; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. I. Wilson, of Moreland, Ga.; one sister, Miss Susan Wilson, Moreland; three brothers, Paul and Clifford Wilson, of Norfolk, Va., and Clarence Wilson, of Norfolk, Va.

YOUTHFUL VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK DIES IN AMBULANCE

Said by physicians to have been the victim of heart trouble, Alvin Bogus, 19, of 558 Helena street, was found in an unconscious condition late Friday night on the sidewalk in front of 1293 Hartford avenue. He died a few minutes later in an ambulance which was rushing him to Grady hospital.

F. S. Lard, 1255 Hartford, a passer-by, discovered the youth lying on the sidewalk and carried him into a nearby residence from which he summoned an ambulance. Doctors at Grady hospital said his death had been caused by heart failure.

Bogus, who lived with his sister here, was the son of James Bogus, of Franklin, Ga. His body was returned to the funeral parlors of Harry G. "Bole." An inquest will be held at that place today.

Call Officers Jones and Williams investigated the death.

Presbyterians May Grant to Women Pastoral Rights

Chicago, November 23.—The general council of the Presbyterian church has appointed a committee to consider the question of granting women the right to be pastors and elders. Members of the council at a meeting expressed informal approval of women's demands.

IN DRUNKEN RAGE, SHOTS TWO PERSONS

Jealous Man Then Turns
Gun on Self; All Are Badly Hurt.

Asheville, N. C., November 23.—(AP)—A drunken rage, inflamed by the belief the woman he loved was unfaithful, led Cleo Ledford, 30-year-old farmer of the Little Ivy section, to fire all six bullets from his revolver with deadly accuracy, he told Tilden Dillingham, investigator for the solicitor, from his bedside in Mission hospital, where he is in a critical condition this morning. Four of the six bullets lodged in the body of W. R. Nipper, 27 Gaston street; one struck Mrs. Ledford, 2800 Peachtree street, in the mouth, and the sixth entered Ledford's head after he had turned the gun on himself.

Nipper was not expected to live today. In spite of the fact that two of the bullets had fractured his skull in at least four places, he was conscious. He talks, unsteady, but coherent, and physicians issued orders he should be left alone.

While the condition of both Mrs. Ledford and Mr. Ledford were critical, it was believed each had a chance to recover. The bullet which struck Mrs. Ledford entered her mouth and traveled downward in her neck. Though conscious, the mouth wound kept her from speaking. The bullet which struck Mrs. Ledford entered her head and traveled toward her right ear. He was one of the trio able to talk to the investigator.

The shooting took place at Nipper's home off South Side avenue at 6:30 o'clock yesterday evening. There were no witnesses besides the three wounded.

"It was just craziness that made me shoot," Ledford told Mr. Dillingham today. "I was in love with the woman. I waited for her all day, and she didn't come, and I kept on drinking. When she got here, she quarreled and I shot her and myself. He hadn't been treating her right."

WALKER PROTESTS INNOCENCE OF WRONG

HARVEST FESTIVAL PROVES BIG SUCCESS

Agricultural History of State

Six historical episodes tracing the history of agriculture in Georgia composed the colorful pageant which was presented at the Atlanta auditorium Friday night by the women's division of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce for the benefit of the Georgia Agricultural Society.

The third count returned against Walker charged him with defrauding the National Banking association of amount totaling $7,000.

Walker was a member of the sinking fund commission of the City of Sparta, and the bonds which are said to have been hypothecated by him were in the city's fund. The other members were still under way, J. D. Burnell, Dr. R. C. Wiley and a Mr. Merritt, who died before the indictment was returned.

It was stated that in October, 1924, an effort to indict Walker was made in the United States district court at Macon, but it was not until January, 1925 that a true bill was returned.

The affairs of Walker and his connection with the First National bank of Sparta, were not intertwined with the affairs of the Bank of Sparta that on May 1, 1921, while an investigation of the affairs of the bank was still under way, J. D. Burnell, cashier of the Bank of Sparta, shot and killed himself.

Bond Will Be Given. While federal authorities were going through necessary formalities of admitting their prisoner to Fulton tower and paying the way for his transfer to the federal penitentiary, it was reported that the ex-banker's friends of former days were rallying to his support and were ready to post bail for his liberty. United States authorities stated that the bond probably would be $25,000.

Officers who brought Walker here said they were going to the federal court this morning to ascertain where he should be taken for a commitment hearing, as since the indictment was returned, Walker has been in the custody of the United States district court in which he was indicted.

The officers expressed the opinion that the federal court at Savannah, where the records in the case now are kept, Judge Bascom Deaver, of the middle district court, stated at Macon Friday night that he would hold Walker there, as Hancock county, where the offense was alleged to have been committed, is in the middle district.

John D. Walker, who has not seen his father in 13 years, waited for hours at the Macon railroad station Friday night, but no train appeared. He was not notified Macon officers of their intention of holding the prisoner in Atlanta overnight. The report from Macon stated that the son of a banker who worked for Walker after he fled the state, was with him.

U. S. OFFICER SENT FOR JOHN D. WALKER. Savannah, Ga., November 23.—(AP)—Charles L. Redding, United States district attorney for the southern district of Georgia, said today that United States Marshal George McLeod, of Savannah, had gone to Macon to take into custody John D. Walker, former banker who is charged with embezzlement of $2,000 of city funds of Thompson, Ga., bonds, while he was head of the First National bank of Sparta, and charged to Walker in the indictment.

Redding said. Two other counts in the indictment charge first the abstracting and converting to his own use the two bonds, and second, misapplying of the same bonds. The indictment was returned after Walker's disappearance and bond of $25,000 were made, District Attorney Redding said.

The Walker case was transferred to the federal district court of Georgia several years ago when the middle district United States court was created at Macon and Savannah named as bondsmen of the southern district.

Embezzlement of "certain funds and credits" of the city of Sparta, namely, city bonds bearing 5 per cent interest and valued at $7,000, and embezzlement of $2,000 of city funds of Thompson, Ga., bonds, while he was head of the First National bank of Sparta, and charged to Walker in the indictment.

GRANGE PROPOSES
STATE INCOME TAX

Urges Levy To Relieve Burden on Owners of Tangible Property.

Washington, November 23.—(AP)—A proposal for the adoption of state income tax laws to relieve the taxation burden on tangible property owners was approved today by the national grange in its last convention session.

The report of the committee on taxation which was presented by Ralph W. Smith, master of the Iowa grange, also proposed an excess profits tax to be levied by the state, leaving the tax on tangible property for the local needs in counties and municipalities.

The report would provide for the retention of the federal inheritance tax with no reduction in existing rates, and continuation of the federal income tax until the war debt is paid.

A proposal included in the report for a state tax on intangible property was the subject of a long discussion in the grange meeting and it was finally recommended to the taxation committee after delegates from Kansas that it had not worked in their state.

NEGRO YOUTH WINS
DISTINCT HONOR
IN COTTON CONTEST

Savannah, Ga., November 23.—(Special).—Fifty dollars in cash and the distinction of being able to produce a stalk of cotton that won seventh place in competition with farmers of all classes, ages and races in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida is the honor that came to Allen Lucas, Jr., negro vocational agricultural student of the Nunn Agricultural school at Leslie, Ga.

Lucas entered his stalk with 2,217 bolls from the six stalks above and won his laurels in the one-stalk cotton show sponsored by the Sears-Roebuck agricultural foundation at the South-eastern fair, Atlanta, Ga., October 1-8. His stalk had 103 well matured bolls.

Lucas is typical of the average negro farm boy in Georgia. He is the son of a tenant farmer and has experienced some of the hardships of this mode of living. For the past four years he has lived in the Leslie community attending school in his spare time. Although enrolled in the fourth grade, Lucas has shown an unusual amount of ability, skill and thrift in class room and project work.

SAVANNAH OCEAN
MAIL PROPOSAL
GETS ONLY ONE BID

Washington, November 23.—(AP)—The only bid received at the postoffice department today for carrying mails on the ocean route from Savannah, Ga., to Liverpool via Bremen, and to Bremen via Plymouth was that of the South Atlantic Steamship company, of Delaware, with headquarters at Savannah.

The Delaware company's bid was at the rate of $2.50 per nautical mile for vessels of class 6, and $4 per nautical mile for vessels of class 5.

LIVE STOCK LOST
WHEN FIRE RAZES
BARN NEAR TIFTON

Tifton, Ga., November 23.—(AP)—Seventeen mules, three horses, nine purebred hogs, five thousand bushels of corn, twenty tons of hay, and a large quantity of gear and farm tools were burned in a fire which destroyed a barn on J. Wiley Taylor's farm, six miles west of Tifton, last night. The loss was estimated at $17,000, with $7,500 insurance.

$12,250 VERDICT GIVEN

A verdict for $12,250 damages was found in favor of E. C. Austin against the Georgia Power company Friday by a jury in Judge John D. Humphries division of Fulton superior court. The case grew out of a collision between an automobile driven by Austin and a street car on the Soldiers' Home line, on Gaskill street, on June 13, 1927.

Austin sued the power company for $75,000, claiming that he stopped his car at a blind crossing at Gaskill and Astoria streets and started again when he did not see a street car coming. When he was on the tracks, a street car suddenly appeared and knocked his car a considerable distance, permanently injuring him, Austin alleged.

The power company, in its defense, claimed that Austin was negligent and that he was only slightly injured. The case required more than two days for trial. George H. Jones, Jr., represented the plaintiff, while the power company was defended by Walter T. Colquitt and Sidney Smith.

EXTRA TARIFF SESSION
URGED BY LONGWORTH

Speaker Suggests Congress Convene Next Fall and Continue Till December.

Washington, November 23.—(AP)—An extra session of congress beginning next fall and running into the regular December session to handle tariff revisions was suggested today by Speaker Longworth, of the house.

Mr. Longworth explained that this would give an opportunity, if there was to be tariff revision, for the new members of the house ways and means committee to draft the legislation. He would have the committee work during the summer in the preparation of a bill to be taken up in the fall.

The speaker announced that before taking a definite stand on this question he preferred to sound out the sentiment of members of the house. Looking over the calendar for the approaching session, he expressed the hope that the house might act again on the Fenn reapportionment bill which was defeated last spring.

The house has not yet reapportioned its membership on the 1920 census in accordance with the constitution. The Fenn bill would have the reapportionment on the approaching 1930 census. Speaker Longworth did express the opinion that congress could and should enact farm relief legislation at this session in the form of a marketing bill. Like Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the republican leader, he saw no opportunity for completing the old session, he expressed the opinion that a complete tariff revision measure, which also is being demanded as a part of the farm relief program.

LABOR LEADER VISITS
FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT

Warm Springs, Ga., November 23.—(AP)—Organized labor endorsed the attention today of Governor-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, who had a luncheon guest Peter J. Brady, New York labor leader.

Mr. Brady came here from the convention of the American Federation of Labor at New Orleans for a brief call on the governor-elect during which they discussed matters relating to the convention and proposed labor legislation for New York state.

Their conversation took a general form but touched particularly upon the labor plank in the democratic state platform, which embraced the program of the New York State Federation of Labor and child welfare.

The New York visitor, who is a former president of the state federation and now head of the labor bank, the Federation National Bank and Trust company, of New York city, said that Mr. Roosevelt had been friendly to organized labor throughout his public life and that he always had looked upon its problems with a sympathetic attitude.

Peabody is guest.

After the luncheon, at which George Foster Peabody, of Saratoga, N. Y., also was a guest, Mr. Brady left for New Orleans to resume his attendance at the convention. He had flown from the Louisiana city to Montgomery, Ala., whence he motored here via Fort Benning, Ga., and planned to return the same way.

Tonight Mr. Roosevelt tuned his radio in the governor-elect's cottage here to hear details of his induction as an honorary member of the Georgia Society of New York city. The ceremony, which included a similar honor to Mr. Peabody, was broadcast from the society's annual banquet in New York.

During the afternoon Mr. Roosevelt accepted an invitation from a delegation from Chippewa, Ga., to deliver an address there at noon on December 4. The representatives of the town, which is 12 miles from here, told the governor-elect that many of the "homebodies" wished to congratulate him personally on his recent victory and that they wanted to hear from him in turn. They added that plans were being made to stage a barbecue in his honor.

The governor-elect will motor to Chippewa from his cottage here but said he had not decided on what subject he will talk. It will be his first public appearance in Georgia since his election.

SOCIETY HONORS ROOSEVELT, PEABODY.

New York, November 23.—(AP)—Governor-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, and George Foster Peabody, native Georgian and banker, were made honorary members of the Georgia Society of New York at the society's annual dinner-dance tonight at the Hotel Roosevelt.

Radio announcement of their election was made by James O. Boone, president of the society and formerly of Culbertson, Ga. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Peabody had signed their intention of listening in on the broadcast from station WENY at the governor-elect's home at Warm Springs, Ga. —Radio News

Every little boy and girl in Atlanta probably knows that Santa Claus left the North Pole Thursday, November 22nd. We have had several Radio Messages from him since he started.

—The First Message

stated that there were heavy rains and signs of snow—the roads slippery and Santa Claus had no chains for his "Flivver."

—The Second Message

stated that his new Flivver was smashed, but Santa Claus unhurt and all Toys recovered.

—The Third Message

stated Santa Claus had sent for his sleigh and "old reliable" reindeer and expected to make his trip in the usual way.

—The Fourth Message

stated "Off for High's with a generous supply of Toys for High's boy and girl friends. Not much snow, but hope to continue on trip."

—The Fifth Message

"Santa Claus stranded at Arctic Ocean—not enough ice to insure safety of Toy Baggage on Sleigh. Attaboy! A Zeppelin in sight!"

—The Sixth Message

"All toys have been transferred to Zeppelin—the very plane that has been flying over Atlanta! Will arrive at High's Saturday morning!"

STOKERS ARE BLAMED FOR VESTRI'S SINKING

Engineer Says 'Black Gang' Mutinied and Refused To Keep Up Steam.

New York, November 23.—(AP)—The Vestri might not have sunk if the "black gang" had stuck to their posts in the stokehold, said Chief Engineer James A. Adams, testifying today in the steamboat inspection service hearing at the customs house.

The volume of water in the vessel, he told Dickerson N. Hoover, supervising inspector general presiding at the inquiry, was kept down as long as they had steam, but the stokehold crew deserted their posts before 12 o'clock of the Monday that the ship sank.

At one point, Adams told of his rescue by No. 13 lifeboat in which there were five or six sailors and one fireman. He said that the men in this boat were not panicked when they were told to abandon ship, but that they had stowed away in the lifeboat before the ship sank.

"I tried to control them as much as I could," Adams said. "Were they ever mutinous?" "There was no trouble except they wouldn't turn out."

Adams testified that the "black gang" left the stokehold about 10:30 the morning of the day the ship sank. He denied a statement made at the hearing yesterday by Samuel Augustus Parfitt, a fireman, that he was below at 12 o'clock on the day of the sinking.

Cause of Disaster. The chief engineer said the "black gang" left their posts about 10:30 the morning of the day the ship sank. He denied a statement made at the hearing yesterday by Samuel Augustus Parfitt, a fireman, that he was below at 12 o'clock on the day of the sinking.

The chief engineer testified the firemen were on top and in the alleyway. He said he reported to the chief officer and some came down, but he did not think they remained. He said that there was no serious danger until 11:30, when the bulkhead of the coal bunker gave way.

Asked by Walter F. Brown, assistant secretary of commerce, whether he thought "the mutiny of the black gang" largely contributed to the loss of the ship, the chief engineer replied: "I most certainly do."

TELLS OF CAPTAIN'S EFFORT TO SAVE VESTRI. Federal Building, New York, November 23.—(AP)—A brief account of how Captain William Carey worked to the last moment to save the Vestri and fear-stricken passengers until he went down with the liner Vestri was told today into the record of the hearing by the chief engineer, while testimony of witnesses was that all aboard were left to their own resources to escape.

An affidavit by Edward Miles Walcott, a British citizen and a survivor, said the ship sank under him, but he regained the surface and was rescued. Carey first went away without a lifeboat.

Shouting Directions. "After a second he disappeared," Walcott said, adding that previously he last saw the ship as it was being hoisted into the air by the hoisting crane. "His voice was so hoarse," Walcott related, "that I broke on the last order." This was just as the ship went down.

C. W. Johnstone, general manager of the Trinidad Leasehold, an oil-producing concern, agreed with an observation by Walcott, that the ship was listing when it left New York on a voyage that cost more than one hundred lives.

Johnstone said he suggested that a delegation interview the captain. "But nobody agreed with me," he added. "So the matter was dropped. I thought, the passengers ought to be informed."

Later, as the danger increased, Johnstone said he told an officer: "For God's sake, lower some of the starboard boats."

He said the officer replied portside boats were going over first and they were the most difficult to get away. The port side was the side highest from the water. Johnstone added that when the boats were lowered, "all previous arrangements were scrapped. They simply huddled the women and children into the first boats with nobody to manage them."

Quartermaster's Story. Lionel Licorish, the Vestri's quartermaster and one of the heroes of the disaster by reason of his having rescued twenty of the passengers by rowing a lifeboat about through the wreckage after the ship had gone down, testified that after launching of the lifeboats had started, Captain Carey tried to veer the sinking Vestri around to take advantage of the winds.

"But she was uncontrollable," he said. On previous trips last winter, he reached the spot. Catarrh Robs Patient of Vital Resistance

Find a man, woman or child who is afflicted with chronic catarrh of the nose and you will always find a patient who is most susceptible to more serious diseases. Why? Science explains that catarrh interferes with natural breathing thus preventing proper oxygenation and purification of the blood by the lungs and also absolutely prevents restful, refreshing sleep. Catarrh is a constant drain upon the nutrition of the body, making the patient weak and thereby susceptible to all kinds of infectious such as colds, flu, pneumonia, etc.

Your physician will tell you that catarrh is a local condition, not a systemic disease. You must fight it constantly with a local remedy that reaches the spot.

Mercury Rise Slated Today, Says Forecast

High winds which caused an unexpected drop in temperature to just above freezing Friday morning have passed by for the time being and warm, clear weather will be the lot of Atlanta today, according to the prediction of Acting Chief A. H. Scott of the local United States Weather bureau.

Friday's temperature range was from 33 to about 50 late in the afternoon and today's extremes are expected to be 38 and 60, Mr. Scott stated.

SIMPLE INAUGURAL RULED BY HOOVER

the country urging elaborate ceremonies. He added that some people in Washington thought he ought to have an inaugural ball which was a great feature in the days before Wilson, with various organizations, military and otherwise, in a parade from the capitol to the white house after delivery of the inaugural address.

Near First Post. Mr. Hoover is considering the request of the California Greys, San Francisco's crack military organization, that it be accorded the privilege of being the guard of honor on inauguration day but has reached no decision. He said he might use the presidential troop of cavalry from Fort Myer, Va.

Although the inaugural ceremony will be broadcast over the nation by radio, observers expect the national capital to be crowded with visitors from all sections, including many organizations from California. Hoover's headquarters in California, however, are in Palo Alto, has already arranged to send a special train carrying city officials and citizens.

The Maryland moved forward today toward the first part of call on the Gulf of Mexico, where the warship will arrive Sunday for visits to Honduras and Salvador. The tropical sun off the Mexican coast beat down with such intensity that aviators were stretched over the quarterdeck for the protection of the Hoover party.

On account of the heat, most of the president-elect's party has taken to sleeping on deck. Mr. Hoover, however, seemed unaffected by the heat and has been enjoying the trip more than each day. Already he has been greatly benefited by the sea voyage and the marked change in his appearance has been the subject of comment by the ship's officers.

JUDGES SAY EULA, BARNEY MAY MARRY

Millidgeville where a guard will be sent to the Chatsworth jail to bring Eula to the farm.

Planned for Monday. Barney plans to marry Eula Monday, before he leaves for his trip to the farm, since Judge B. H. Dunaway, superintendent of the farm, announced that he would not permit it at the latter place. But Judge Dunaway can not stop such a marriage, if a legal showdown should come.

The Eula-Barney love affair has become a test case. And the outcome will be known Monday. Barney plans to engage the services of an Atlanta attorney to offset any "stiff" prison officials should thrust out.

Barney says he is going to take his attorney with him to Chatsworth. He is going to obtain a license and the ceremony is going to take place immediately following.

Licorish said, the Vestri took on a list of 8 or 10 dogs because her cargo was not stowed properly. When the inquiry opened, after luncheon Tuttle said Johnstone's testimony was so clear and comprehensive that it would be unnecessary to call other surviving passengers, although he said he would submit affidavits by Marian C. Batten, William Ulrich, Delores B. Dorfl, Marie Ulrich and Mrs. Elmer C. Ryon, who were rescued by the battleship Wyoming.

Tuttle asked Wheeler to conduct his inquiry in the presence of the surviving officers of the Vestri and to report his findings at the hearing, indicating that this hearing would be in session several days longer. Wheeler agreed to do this.

At 4:15 o'clock the hearing was adjourned until 10:30 a. m. Monday for the presentation of evidence to permit Captain Jessop to go over the plans of the ship with Wheeler.

TWO NEGROES SOUGHT IN WEAVER KILLING

Patrolman Stegall, Who Had Been Arrested, Is Given His Liberty.

After a day of intensive work on the part of detectives, officers late Friday night were looking for a pair of negro thugs believed to have been responsible for the murder of W. L. Weaver, aged crocer of 237 East Hunter street, who was found dead in an alley near his home early Friday morning.

Superintendent Patrolman J. W. Stegall, who was held in questioning after it was learned that he had visited Weaver in the company of the old man's son earlier Thursday night and that heated words had been exchanged, was released early Friday night.

Detective John Lowe, in charge of the case, announced that Stegall was freed following the questioning of J. A. Strickland, 45, Little street, a companion of the officer on Thursday night.

Arrests Two Youths. According to Stegall's statement, he and a companion went to Stegall's home early in the night and after a short time the three of them left for a friend's house at Calhoun and McMillan streets. Arriving there, Strickland stated, they found W. J. Weaver, son of the murdered man, and Charles Cooper, another youth. Stegall having learned a few hours before of the accusation made Monday by the elder Weaver, that his son had robbed him of a considerable sum of money, arrested the two youths.

Still riding in his car, Strickland said, they then drove to Weaver's house with Cooper and Weaver as prisoners. Upon arriving there they called the elder Weaver to the door and in the discussion which followed the old man, not knowing Stegall, said he would not allow his son to be in the company of such "some policeman named Stegall" and "each other pretty well" and expressed his belief that the officer might have had some part in the robbery. Stegall then revealed his identity and hotly protested this imputation.

They then left for headquarters, where they were held for some time. Strickland told detectives, but stopped for a few minutes at a place on Port street, where Stegall allowed his prisoners and his friends to have a drink, but took none himself. They then proceeded to headquarters, where Stegall left his car.

Still riding in his car, Strickland said, they then drove to Weaver's house with Cooper and Weaver as prisoners. With three persons dead, two wounded, one probably fatally, Omaha, Neb., police have been conducting a man-hunt for an axe slayer who terrorized the city with his crimes. Top photos shows Mrs. Harold Strickling, Harold Strickling and their baby, Mollie, attacked by the slayer as they slept. Strickling, suffering from a fractured skull, is not expected to live. Mrs. Strickling saved herself and baby by entreaties after the man had struck her a glancing blow with his axe. Below are, left, Crede Brown, 18, and Mrs. Gertrude Resso, 21, both dead after being hatched by the slayer in Mrs. Resso's home. Joseph Blackman, 75, an expressman, was the first victim of the slayer.

itors of the Adair Realty and Trust company, just before it failed. According to the testimony of J. Rodgers Young, vice president of the William N. Young Hotel company, Little Rock, his concern has liquidated some of the $750,000 issue of bonds sold for the construction of the William N. Young hotel, and buyers have realized from one-half of one percent to six and a half percent on the dollar on their investments, according to the interest due them.

Yomans' in testimony regarding the connection between the Whitfield estates and the Adair Realty and Trust company, said that the Adair company received all the money from the sale of lots, and that this money was to be applied on the loans advanced the estates.

How Much Returned. "How much of this money was so returned?" he was asked. "There is a $9,000 entry in one place and one for $15,000 in another," was the reply.

Asked by defense counsel what had become of the money which was returned, Yomans testified that all of it was turned back into improvement of the property.

Defense counsel then asked if there was not approximately four-fifths of the estate remaining to be sold to assure the payment of the loans. "Yes," the witness replied. Court recessed until 10 a. m. Monday.

ADAIR DEFENSE BASED ON COLLAPSE IN FLORIDA

Gainesville, November 23.—(Special).—Attorney Marion Smith of defense counsel in the trial of four real estate men charged with the collapse of the Adair company in federal court here, today said that the collapse of the Adair company was due to the collapse of the Florida business.

He said that the collapse of the Adair company was due to the collapse of the Florida business, and that the defense was based on the fact that the Adair company was a victim of the Florida business collapse.

Notes Equalled Indebtedness. Under questioning of defense attorneys, Yomans testified that the Adair company was in possession of the Adair company as security for advances at all times equalled the amount of the debt.

After the government delved into the Whitfield transactions, several witnesses told of the $1,200,000 bond issue of the Union Building company of Birmingham, which was turned over to the Adair firm for sale to build a hotel in Birmingham.

Cobb, Birmingham president of the Union Building company, said the hotel was only 40 to 50 per cent completed because of failure of the contractor to pay the bond building contractor regularly.

Hotels Under Scrutiny. Details regarding the defunct company's two other hotel projects, the Tennessee Terrace, Knoxville, Tenn., and the William N. Young, Little Rock, Ark., were also under government scrutiny today.

George S. Harvey, Little Rock contractor, and secretary and treasurer of the Stewart McGee company, contractors for the William N. Young hotel, testified that his company was forced to stop work on the structure when no further funds for construction were available. About two-thirds of the foundation was completed, and there was no work above the ground, Mr. Harvey testified.

The Adair Realty and Trust company agreed to underwrite bonds to the extent of $950,000 for the construction of the Tennessee Terrace, with Forrest Adair, Sr., as trustee, according to the testimony of Frank Baker, of Knoxville, president of the Tennessee Terrace Hotel company. Work on the project was started in September, 1923 and abandoned in March 1927, with the hotel about 30 to 40 per cent complete, he declared on the witness stand.

Work on Hotel Stopped. Work on the Birmingham hotel was abandoned with the structure approximately 50 per cent complete, when the payment of estimates ceased, testified W. F. Creighton, Nashville, president of the Foster Creighton company, which had the contract for the Birmingham hotel.

C. E. Cable, special accountant of the bureau of investigation, department of justice, testified that he had made six trips to the Tennessee Terrace and papers of the Adair Realty and Trust company. This investigation showed, according to his testimony, that the $1,200,000 bond issue of the Birmingham company, $1,100,000 were sold. If the Adair company had kept the money there should have been approximately $500,000 remaining when the concern closed, he testified.

Asked by government counsel whether the money was paid out as soon as it came in, the accountant stated that at times collections were far ahead of the outlay.

Waited for Creditor's Meeting. In response to questions by the defense, Mr. Cable stated that he would not indicate that there had been any failure to pay a creditor who received until after the meeting of the creditors.

Victims of Omaha Axe Slayer

THOMAS F. RYAN, LAST OF OLD REGIME, DIES

New York, November 23.—(AP)—Thomas Fortune Ryan, one of the founders of big business, died today at his Fifth avenue home, leaving wealth reputed to be between $300,000,000 and $500,000,000.

The financier, inactive in recent years after a spectacular career that embraced democratic politics as well as high finance in the utility field, was taken ill last Tuesday with acute inflammation of the bladder. He improved somewhat until last evening, when he suffered a collapse.

His age—77 years—and his general physical condition precluded an attempt to operate. Death came early this afternoon, with members of the family at the bedside.

Estranged From Son. Word of how Mr. Ryan had disposed of his estate, apparently one of the largest ever accumulated by an individual, was awaited with interest, for it was recalled that he had been estranged from his son, Allan A. Ryan, a banker, for several years. At the time of the younger Ryan's bankruptcy in 1922, after the famous Stutz Motor corner in Wall street, it was reported that the father had placed part of his money at his son's disposal.

The life story of this man of many millions is typically American. It is typical, too, of the careers of other pioneers of his period who, after struggling through boyhood and youth, found use for latent talents in the business opportunities that were opening up in this country fifty and sixty years ago.

Thomas Fortune Ryan, who was one day to be denounced by William Jennings Bryan as typical of the "trust-busting interests" which the democracy must battle, worked as a boy of 17 in dry goods houses of Baltimore. He later found him in Wall street as a broker's clerk, and another four years saw him a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Native of Virginia. The shrewd, youthful native of Nelson county, Virginia, quickly developed an interest in street railways and lighting systems. William C. Whitney, himself a traction man, became Ryan's partner in the "great" traction interests which the democracy must battle, worked as a boy of 17 in dry goods houses of Baltimore. He later found him in Wall street as a broker's clerk, and another four years saw him a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Whitfield Estates. "An illustration of this investment was the Whitfield Estates, which has been criticized by the district attorney. This investment was made in 1925 and slightly in the early part of 1926. At that time Florida values were at the peak and any appraiser of the Whitfield properties would have said they were worth in excess of the obligations to the Adair Realty & Trust company, not thousands, but millions of dollars.

"As soon as they found that the Florida depression had gone so far that they could not arrange to finance the company, they called in a committee of creditors, headed by Eugene Black, now governor of the federal reserve bank, and had them take charge of the company's affairs. The committee, under Mr. Black's leadership, after exhaustive study, thought the company could be refinanced and its obligations paid, and directed the Adair to continue its operations under the committee. This shows how fully the Adairs themselves were justified in believing that the situation was sound."

Yeomans Principal Witness. Julian B. Yeomans, head of the bookkeeping department of the company, principal witness on the stand Friday, identified many books and records of the company.

Yeomans testified that the first advance made by the Adair company to the Whitfield estates was for $30,000 on May 13, 1925, and said that by July 17, 1925, these advances had amounted to $150,000. In August, 1926, he said, the total advances to the Whitfield estates was $1,318,519.35, all carried on the company books as accounts receivable.

Attorney Hager questioned the witness about the advertising methods of the company but Yeomans stated he did not know of any such advertising.

Yeomans testified that when the Adair company undertook to float bonds issued on real estate developments, advances were made to these projects regardless of whether the particular bonds had been sold and that proceeds of bond sales were placed in a common fund from which such advances were made.

Cobb Next on Stand. H. H. Cobb, president of the Union Realty company of Birmingham, through whom the underwriters agreed with the Adair company for the financing and building of the Tennessee Terrace hotel was made, was the next witness.

Mr. Cobb said the bonds for the project, totaling $1,200,000, were turned over to the Adair company and sold to the hotel contractors and will amount to approximately $619,000 on the bonds it had sold.

When the hotel was only 40 or 50 per cent complete, Mr. Cobb said, he received notice from F. G. Bachelor, in the Atlanta office, that the Adair Realty and Trust company was in financial trouble and probably would not be able to pay the next contractor's estimate. He said he went to Atlanta at that time, in January, 1927, and was told that the next estimate could not be paid. The contractors in Birmingham, he said, ceased work because the money had not been paid on previous estimates.

Mr. Cobb said he received $50,000 on the money he was supposed to get from the Adair Realty and Trust company and that is the last money received on the project. He said the Adair company paid $501,531.67 to the hotel contractors and will amount to approximately $619,000 on the bonds it had sold.

increase of $20,000 above the previous high mark set yesterday, and $260,000 above the year's low. This brings the total value of 1,100 memberships, at current prices, to more than $600,000,000.

In view of the fact that the federal reserve brokers' loans, made public after the close of yesterday, showed an enormous increase of $176,000,000, lifting the total to a new high record at $5,157,182,000, the opening of the market today was a record with a sharp break. Instead, the market, which has developed a curious facility for doing the unexpected, opened with a surprising outburst of strength.

Coty, one of the first stocks to appear on the tape, opened with a block of 40,000 shares at $8 1/2 a share, up $1.75. Then came a block of 18,000 shares of Superior Oil at $12.75, up 25 cents, and a block of 15,000 shares of Nash Motors at $108.57 1/2, up $3.62 1/2. In quick succession, followed blocks of 11,000 shares of Consolidated Gas and 10,000 shares each of Anaconda Copper, Inspiration Copper, Columbia Graphophone and Pathe, all at rising prices.

THOMAS F. RYAN, LAST OF OLD REGIME, DIES

Financier Dies

New York, November 23.—(AP)—Thomas Fortune Ryan, one of the founders of big business, died today at his Fifth avenue home, leaving wealth reputed to be between $300,000,000 and $500,000,000.

The financier, inactive in recent years after a spectacular career that embraced democratic politics as well as high finance in the utility field, was taken ill last Tuesday with acute inflammation of the bladder. He improved somewhat until last evening, when he suffered a collapse.

His age—77 years—and his general physical condition precluded an attempt to operate. Death came early this afternoon, with members of the family at the bedside.

Estranged From Son. Word of how Mr. Ryan had disposed of his estate, apparently one of the largest ever accumulated by an individual, was awaited with interest, for it was recalled that he had been estranged from his son, Allan A. Ryan, a banker, for several years. At the time of the younger Ryan's bankruptcy in 1922, after the famous Stutz Motor corner in Wall street, it was reported that the father had placed part of his money at his son's disposal.

The life story of this man of many millions is typically American. It is typical, too, of the careers of other pioneers of his period who, after struggling through boyhood and youth, found use for latent talents in the business opportunities that were opening up in this country fifty and sixty years ago.

Thomas Fortune Ryan, who was one day to be denounced by William Jennings Bryan as typical of the "trust-busting interests" which the democracy must battle, worked as a boy of 17 in dry goods houses of Baltimore. He later found him in Wall street as a broker's clerk, and another four years saw him a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Native of Virginia. The shrewd, youthful native of Nelson county, Virginia, quickly developed an interest in street railways and lighting systems. William C. Whitney, himself a traction man, became Ryan's partner in the "great" traction interests which the democracy must battle, worked as a boy of 17 in dry goods houses of Baltimore. He later found him in Wall street as a broker's clerk, and another four years saw him a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Whitfield Estates. "An illustration of this investment was the Whitfield Estates, which has been criticized by the district attorney. This investment was made in 1925 and slightly in the early part of 1926. At that time Florida values were at the peak and any appraiser of the Whitfield properties would have said they were worth in excess of the obligations to the Adair Realty & Trust company, not thousands, but millions of dollars.

"As soon as they found that the Florida depression had gone so far that they could not arrange to finance the company, they called in a committee of creditors, headed by Eugene Black, now governor of the federal reserve bank, and had them take charge of the company's affairs. The committee, under Mr. Black's leadership, after exhaustive study, thought the company could be refinanced and its obligations paid, and directed the Adair to continue its operations under the committee. This shows how fully the Adairs themselves were justified in believing that the situation was sound."

Yeomans Principal Witness. Julian B. Yeomans, head of the bookkeeping department of the company, principal witness on the stand Friday, identified many books and records of the company.

Yeomans testified that the first advance made by the Adair company to the Whitfield estates was for $30,000 on May 13, 1925, and said that by July 17, 1925, these advances had amounted to $150,000. In August, 1926, he said, the total advances to the Whitfield estates was $1,318,519.35, all carried on the company books as accounts receivable.

Attorney Hager questioned the witness about the advertising methods of the company but Yeomans stated he did not know of any such advertising.

Yeomans testified that when the Adair company undertook to float bonds issued on real estate developments, advances were made to these projects regardless of whether the particular bonds had been sold and that proceeds of bond sales were placed in a common fund from which such advances were made.

Cobb Next on Stand. H. H. Cobb, president of the Union Realty company of Birmingham, through whom the underwriters agreed with the Adair company for the financing and building of the Tennessee Terrace hotel was made, was the next witness.

Mr. Cobb said the bonds for the project, totaling $1,200,000, were turned over to the Adair company and sold to the hotel contractors and will amount to approximately $619,000 on the bonds it had sold.

When the hotel was only 40 or 50 per cent complete, Mr. Cobb said, he received notice from F. G. Bachelor, in the Atlanta office, that the Adair Realty and Trust company was in financial trouble and probably would not be able to pay the next contractor's estimate. He said he went to Atlanta at that time, in January, 1927, and was told that the next estimate could not be paid. The contractors in Birmingham, he said, ceased work because the money had not been paid on previous estimates.

Mr. Cobb said he received $50,000 on the money he was supposed to get from the Adair Realty and Trust company and that is the last money received on the project. He said the Adair company paid $501,531.67 to the hotel contractors and will amount to approximately $619,000 on the bonds it had sold.

FORMER OGLETHORPE GRID STAR ACQUITT

Half an hour's deliberation by a jury in Judge E. E. Pomeroy's division of Fulton superior court Friday resulted in a verdict of acquittal for Cecil Lemon, former Oglethorpe college football star, who was charged with cheating and swindling.

Lemon, in his statement to the jury, denied any intent at fraud in transactions with friends, stating that he had every reason to believe that his postdated checks would be cashed at the proper time, but that circumstances had made it otherwise. The transactions involved insurance premium notes.

The defense was conducted by Attorneys George Finch and C. L. Padgett, while John H. Hudson, assistant solicitor-general, represented the state.

ECONOMIC WISDOM IN LIBERAL WAGE

Secretary of Labor Tells Labor Men Business Men Revise Views.

New Orleans, November 23.—(AP)—Speaking before the American Federation of Labor in session here, James J. Davis, secretary of labor, today said that progressive business men had come to see the economic wisdom of paying a liberal wage.

"The old notion that prosperity is produced only by the buying of a wealthy class has been exploded," he declared. "The man who still thinks in this mistaken vein is wrong in the very fundamentals of economics. Prosperity is not the product of the masses. Today our well-paid workers share in the wealth now being produced and help create prosperity because they have acquired all that multiplicity of wants that once distinguished only the well-to-do."

Secretary Davis asserted that, during his service in the cabinet, the number of strikes and lockouts had steadily decreased. He declared this was due in part to a "rapid rise in industrial intelligence." He said that while industrial differences still occur, "our interests are now so interlocked that we have to count the cost before we strike."

He said also that the change was due in part to the increase in wages that made a workman hesitate before quitting his job. In connection with this, he recalled the difference in conditions now and when he came to New Orleans in search of work nearly 40 years ago.

"I remember work here on the levee," he said. "I was driving a pair of mules that dragged a dirt scraper. Never before had I driven mules, but I had to have a job, and was willing to try anything. Somehow, one day, the handle of the scraper came up and handed me a wicked cut across one of my eyes. The boss saw the blood on my face and fired me for incompetence. By all the rules of the game I had at least $20 of pay coming to me, but did I get it? I did not. I got it where the handle of the scraper got me."

Labor-Saving Machines.

Secretary Davis indicated he believed workmen had nothing to fear from the so-called "labor-saving" machines. He said that they were becoming "leisure-producing machines" and that he believed they had a great deal to do with the moment away from the long day and the seven-day week. He declared that prosperity was fairly general, but said there was room for improvement in some industries, notably, the textile, shoe and soft coal industries.

In reviewing the work done by his department, Secretary Davis said he believed in voluntary arbitration, and that he had found that force would not work.

"We must arrive at our industrial conclusions in a peaceful and harmonious way," he said.

ANDERSON NAMED TO SUCCEED GRIER AS C. & W. C. HEAD

Greenwood, S. C., November 23.—(AP)—Albert W. Anderson, of Augusta, Ga., was elected today president of the Charleston & Western Carolina railway. The election was announced following the morning session of a meeting of directors of the road held here. Mr. Anderson, who has for the last years served the railway company as its general manager, will continue in that capacity. As president he succeeds E. Barron Grier, resigned, who recently was appointed general counsel of the Atlantic Coast Line, services to begin on January 1.

FEDERAL RESERVE NAMES HARRISON FOR STRONG'S POST

New York, November 23.—(AP)—George L. Harrison, deputy governor of the New York Federal Reserve bank, today was elected governor to succeed the late Benjamin Strong. Mr. Harrison has been in charge of relations with foreign banks and gold operations. Like that of Governor Strong, who died about a month ago, Mr. Harrison's association with the federal reserve system dates back to its organization in 1914. He served first as assistant general counsel, later as general counsel and since 1920 has held the office of deputy governor of the New York bank. He formerly was in charge of cash and collection functions.

The new governor was appointed at yesterday's meeting of the board of directors, appointment of the officers of federal reserve banks being within the province of their respective boards.

COOLIDGE MAY GET PROPOSAL TO HEAD PETROLEUM BODY

New York, November 23.—(AP)—The New York Times-Tribune says a move to offer the presidency of the American Petroleum Institute to President Coolidge at the institute's annual meeting in Chicago December 3-6 has been started by officials powerful in the industry.

The New York Times quotes W. R. Boyd, Jr., assistant general secretary of the institute, as saying: "The names of President Coolidge, General Pershing, Vice President Dawes and Owen D. Young have been suggested in this connection but nothing has been done about it, and, so far as I know, the institute has not given the matter any consideration."

The American Petroleum Institute is the national trade organization for the oil industry. Heretofore the president has been selected from within the industry. E. W. Clark, of Los Angeles, being the incumbent.

Philadelphia Police Head Resigns Place; Successor Appointed

Philadelphia, November 23.—(AP)—Mayor Harry A. Mackey announced today that he had accepted the resignation of Harry C. Davis, director of the department of public safety, and had appointed as his successor Lemuel B. Schofield, first assistant district attorney. Davis' resignation was forecast when the special grand jury investigating bootlegging uncovered corruption in his department.

Since the start of the grand jury investigation, policemen, captains, inspectors and an assistant superintendent of police, named "unfit to hold any public office" by the grand jury, have been discharged or suspended. Some police officers are serving sentences for bribery and extortion.

No charges of any kind connecting Davis with police corruption have ever been made. He became the head of the police and fire bureau when Mayor Mackey took office the first of the present year.

BOY OF 13 IS HELD AFTER KILLING LAD HE SAYS HE FEARED

Searcy, Ark., November 23.—(AP)—A 13-year-old son of a wood cutter, who though small for his age, had been something of a mother to two younger children since their mother left them several years ago, was held in jail here tonight facing a manslaughter charge for shooting to death another boy of the same age, whom he described as a "bully."

The youthful slayer, George Smith, said he had lived under a constant fear of the other boy, Clarence Dodge, and when Dodge followed him and his brother and sister home from school yesterday and threatened them, he seized a shotgun and fired. Both lived near Earhart, 15 miles from here.

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney C. L. Pearce said while it was his duty to prosecute the boy, he doubted that the grand jury would indict him.

"It's a pitiful situation," Pearce said.

The dead boy's mother, his only parent living, and his brothers had not been to see the prosecuting attorney tonight and he said he had been told they did not blame young Smith for the killing.

Smith's wife left him several years ago and since then George has cared for his smaller brother and sister during the day, except when they were in school, while the father worked away from home.

Washington, November 23.—(AP)—Extension of the senate inquiry into disposal of federal patronage include the state of Alabama is under consideration, Chairman Brookhart, of the senate investigating committee, said today.

Senator Brookhart said several complaints had been received from Alabama and that he favored investigation of all complaints. However, the future course of the committee will not be determined until it meets here, probably next week.

If the Alabama inquiry is undertaken, Mr. Brookhart said he hoped it

THE YOUNG PRETENDERS

By Alice Grant Rosman

While lying helpless in bed after a motor accident, Hugo Donaldson broods over the fact that his father, with whom he's quarreled before the smash, has never come into his room to visit him. He decides that he must be dead and that his mother and the servants are keeping it from him. His aunt, Lady Eleanor Wins, a great gossip, comes to call and tells Hugo that his friend, Paul Mestry, is in prison for stealing and that he has married some girl of whom his family disapproved and that Bunny Voltaire had expected to marry Paul and is heartbroken over the affair. Bunny comes and tells Hugo the story. Paul, she says, lives, has been the victim of blackmailers and his family, because of his marriage, had failed to stand back of him in the affair. Bunny assures Hugo that she was never engaged to Paul, but because of her lifelong friendship for him she would like to help him.

Paul Mestry's wife is living in disguise under the name of Mrs. Hallett. She is under the necessity of earning her living while Paul is in prison and when Hugo asks for some one to read to him every day his aunt, Tright, introduces Mrs. Hallett.

INSTALLMENT XVIII. HUGO'S READER ARRIVES.

The night was warm, one of those nights when spring, having coquetted with winter and delayed too long, seems to come running through a waiting world, spilling her scents as she goes. Hugo's French windows were slightly open and the breath of the young and lovely season stole in, bringing hope again and a vague longing for something which he could not even translate into thought. His eyes grew hot and he felt they were full of tears, which was strange, for he never cried; yet such an outrage to his dignity did not even trouble him now; he was hardly aware of it.

Before his mind was the picture of Bunny . . . funny Bunny, all down the years, with her changing elfin face and he seemed to be gazing at it with an immense surprise.

"Bunny's different," said Hugo eagerly to the spring night.

Donaldson Richard, Kt., was now on trial before his son. Hugo was going to be perfectly fair about it and give him a final chance. He wouldn't condemn him until he had seen the newspapers, but Bunny was coming today and she would get them for him.

The moon-faced clock said it was half past ten in a determined manner; no nonsense about it. The wide open windows showed him a golden morning and trees in the park beginning to dress themselves in green.

"And very nice you look," said Hugo encouragingly to the trees.

"Did you call, sir?" inquired Tright, appearing immediately like an over-large mechanical toy.

Hugo was not going to tell Tright his opinion of the tree, so he looked about him for some other answer. A fly was strolling languidly across the primrose wall, and he seized upon that.

"Having a friendly chat with that old fly?" he said.

Tright's professional pride was outraged and the patient saw murder in his eye.

"Hi . . . leave the poor chap alone," cried Hugo perceptively. "You are a bully, hitting a fellow smaller than yourself. He's not doing you any harm."

"Ah, but you never know, not with a fly," said Tright.

The fly, however, won the day. He sat on the ceiling, which was more than Tright could do, and put his finger to his nose. Hugo was delighted . . . a vulgar little chap but hearty, a good, honest cockney fly.

Tright, having lost the day, departed and Hugo winked at his friend on the ceiling.

"I shall adopt you," he said. "I'll introduce you to Bunny and the Hound as my favorite fly. This is Bill. I'll say . . . no Willy . . . Willy Nilly."

His delight over this latest piece of childishness was interrupted by the return of Tright with the newspapers, looking clever and pleased with himself.

"Now in less than half an hour Mrs. Hallett will be here, sir, and you'll have all the news," said Tright, setting a chair in readiness, and moving Tossie's roses in their crystal jar so that they would still be in the patient's line of vision when Mrs. Hallett sat down. He had a tidy mind for such details. The angle of a chair in a sick room was of immense importance in his eyes, the hang of a picture, too, or a speck on the carpet. Tright, seeking to spare his patient the little irritations, had not wit enough to know that perfection may be the greatest irritant of all.

"Now, you're splendid. That's right," said Tright.

The thought of his splendor in Mrs. Hallett's eyes when she should presently arrive, annoyed Hugo intensely.

"I must look a pretty mug," he thought, and took down his pipe and lit it, preparing a scowl by way of greeting.

When, at five minutes to eleven, Leader showed her in, he exclaimed: "Hullo! Come on, I say, you are late."

"I'm not," said Mrs. Hallett, looking indignantly at the little clock.

"Ha, ha! Got a bite," crowed Hugo. "Now what you've got to do is to read me all the juicy bits, do you mind? We'll have a nice bright murder first, please, Mrs. Reader-ess."

"Shove your chair round and be comfortable and take off your hat and do drop a few things about, I like it," he added.

"I shall do nothing of the kind," said Mrs. Hallett in tone of reproof. She left her hat on, put down her gloves and bag and looked carefully through the newspapers.

"There doesn't seem to be a murder of any kind this morning," she said at last.

"Not one?" Hugo was indignant. "O, hang it all, there must be at least a tame one."

"Not a single murder," replied Mrs. Hallett.

"Why, what is it you're coming to?" said Hugo. "I've a good mind to write and complain. But never mind. I don't suppose it's your fault. I say, has Mr. Hallett got a valet?"

"Whatever do you mean?" exclaimed the girl, looking frightened.

"O, I just thought I'd like to know, because he sounds as if he ought to have a valet."

"Mr. Hallett had a valet that sort of thing," said the girl shortly.

"Never your mind." His tone was friendly and consoling because he was afraid he had hurt her feelings. "I'll bet he hasn't got a valet, anyhow, like me. That's what Tright is, you know, and I'm his prisoner, only they keep it dark. They keep everything dark," said Hugo with fierce emphasis.

"Why . . . what would you like me to read?"

"I don't mind and neither does Willy Nilly." He put out a hand and touched her arm. "Look up there on the ceiling. Willy Nilly, my favorite fly. Every prisoner has to have some sort of pet, you know. Generally, it's a rat, but Tright wouldn't let me have a rat. He's funny. And after all, I prefer Willy Nilly. Don't you think he's rather a darling?"

Mrs. Hallett turned a white face to the patient and looked him in the eye.

"Mr. Donaldson, why are you saying such things to me?" she asked, keeping her voice firm with a desperate effort.

Hugo sobered at once.

"You didn't really think I was mad, did you?" he said in a startled voice.

"My word, you poor girl, you look frightened to death. I was only playing the fool. It's about the only thing left for me to do. I thought Willy Nilly rather a bright touch myself, which just shows you what a fellow comes to, lying here dressed up like a doll all day, with old Tright on guard and nobody to read him the murders."

The market was generally well supplied, and the price of cotton was steady, with a slight advance in the afternoon.

This reaction seemed sufficient to bring in a renewal of western and Wall Street buying, particularly in the later months, and the highest prices of the day for March and later deliveries were reached. The market was characterized by a steady, but not very active, movement. The market was generally well supplied, and the price of cotton was steady, with a slight advance in the afternoon.

Trade buying to fix prices on call cotton was reported during the early trading and again in the early afternoon, but the advance was not sustained during the middle of the day and again toward the close. Private cables reported trade calling and continental buying in Liverpool, and said that Manchester was more optimistic with an increased cloth demand from India and an improving demand for yarn. The market was characterized by a steady, but not very active, movement. The market was generally well supplied, and the price of cotton was steady, with a slight advance in the afternoon.

ADVANCE FOLLOWED BY LIQUIDATION.

New Orleans, November 23.—(Special.)—Liquidation and profit-taking following an opening advance in the cotton market today, but the resultant decline was checked and the market was characterized by a steady, but not very active, movement. The market was generally well supplied, and the price of cotton was steady, with a slight advance in the afternoon.

Liverpool cables reported a further rally in the cotton market, and the market was characterized by a steady, but not very active, movement. HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

AS THE "ROUGH RIDERS," WITH DETACHMENTS OF THE 1ST AND 10TH CAVALRY (REGULARS) ADVANCED UP THE HILL AT LAS GUASIMAS, THEY WERE MET BY A MURDEROUS FIRE FROM THE SPANISH RIFLEMEN HIDDEN IN THE UNDERBUSH. THE SPANIARDS WERE USING SMOKELESS POWDER, AND OUR MEN COULD NOT SEE THEIR FOES.

The Story of Our War With Spain. The Battle of Las Guasimas (Continued).

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

CLIMBING UP THE SLOPE, THE AMERICANS SUFFERED 40 OR 50 CASUALTIES. AMONG THE BADLY WOUNDED WAS EDWARD MARSHALL, A NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENT WHO HAD PLUCKILY ACCOMPANIED THE TROOPS INTO THE THICK OF THE FIGHT.

AT THE TOP OF THE RISE STOOD A SPANISH BLOCKHOUSE. LIEUTENANT COL. ROOSEVELT, PICKING UP THE KRAQ-JORGENSEN RIFLE OF A FALLEN SOLDIER, RALLIED THE "ROUGH RIDERS" AND, POINTING TO THE BLOCKHOUSE, LED HIS MEN IN A DESPERATE CHARGE ACROSS THE CLEARING. THE AMERICANS UTTERING TERRIFYING INDIAN WAR WHOOPS.

AS THE VOLUNTEERS REACHED THE CREST OF THE HILL, THE SPANIARDS DESCENDED THE BLOCKHOUSE AND PLUNGED INTO THE AMERICAN LEAVES SEVENTEEN DEAD ON THE FIELD. THE VICTORY DID NOT PURSUE, BUT CAMPED ON THE CAPTURED HILL.
